PROGRAMME LIST

College of Engineering, Science & Technology

Certificate IV in Biomedical Technology

About the programme:

The main purpose of this programme is to prepare students for employment in trade level engineering occupations, requiring expertise in biomedical technology.

The general characteristics of the programme are outlined in an appropriate section of the UAS of FNU and, more specifically, the programme aims to provide a broad based, initial vocational programme for those performing trade level biomedical engineering work in hospitals or biomedical engineering technology industries.

Objective:

The programme provides a set of units which will enable graduates to work in hospitals as technical support staff and in a range of biomedical engineering technology industries, requiring biomedical expertise, such as those concerned with:

1. The installation of equipment or devices for medical services;
2. An introduction to anatomy and physiology, medical terminology, biomedical workshop practice;
3. Electrical and gas safety in hospitals; and
4. A range of units to enable specialization in aspects of biomedical engineering technology such as:
 - Power systems circuits functionality, trouble shooting and diagnosis;
 - Electronic systems and technology;
 - Computer/microprocessor interface and application software;
 - Control systems and industrial electronics;
 - Pneumatics and hydraulics systems; and
 - Correction, installation and/or maintenance of electronic component of biomedical equipment and devices.

Study Mode:

Trimester basis
Total of 18 units to complete

Campus Offered:

Derrick Campus, Samabula

Minimum Qualifications Requirements:

Pass in Year 12 (Form 6) with 200 out of 400 marks with pass (50% or more) in English and any 3 best subjects OR pass in 8 units in Preliminary science/technology. Applicants may also be admitted on the basis of maturity, work experience, or prior learning.

Certificate IV in Meteorology

The Certificate IV in Meteorology Programme is a one – year programme that broadens students' understanding of scientific phenomena encountered in everyday life. Courses in mathematics, physics, weather and climate, the natural variability within the earth-atmosphere system, tropical cyclone genesis, climatology and forecasting, climate variability, change and the prediction system and general meteorology ensure competency in students' skill levels. This programme also forms a bridging path for those who have limited education up to the form 6 level, and forms a basis for further studies towards the Bachelor of Meteorology or Science.

Objective:

Upon completion of the Certificate in Meteorology Programme, students should be able to:

1. Develop abilities of inquiry;
2. Integrate physical and chemical aspects of science;
3. Collect and analyze weather data;
4. Apply subject matter disciplines in the context of inquiry, technology and science in social or personal perspectives;
5. Analyze the impact of technology on society and the environment to draw conclusions about its worth; and
6. Create awareness about global warming and climate change.

Study Mode:

Trimester basis
Total of 10 units to complete

Campus Offered:

Lautoka Campus

Minimum Qualifications Requirements:

Pass in Year 12 (Form 6) with 200 out of 400 marks with pass (50% or more) in English and any 3 best subjects OR pass in 8 units in Preliminary science. Applicants may also be admitted on the basis of maturity, work experience, or prior learning.

Certificate IV in Broadcasting Engineering

About the programme:

The main purpose of this programme is to prepare students for employment in trade level engineering occupations, requiring expertise in Broadcast Engineering.

The general characteristics of the programme aims to provide a broad based, initial vocational programme for those performing trade level Broadcast engineering work in a range of Broadcast industries – Radio and TV.

Objective:

The programme provides a set of units which will enable graduates to work as maintenance technician in a range of electrical and electronic industries, requiring broadcast expertise, such as those concerned with:

1. The installation of broadcast & electronic equipment or devices;
2. Workshop practice and safety in industries;
3. Broadcast system and technology;
4. Computer/Microprocessor interface and application software;
5. Control Systems and industrial electronics;
6. Power systems circuits' functionality, trouble shooting and diagnosis;
7. Installation and maintenance of broadcast/telecommunication and networking systems and technology; and
8. Correction, installation and/or maintenance of broadcast equipment and devices.

Study Mode:

Trimester basis
Total of 19 units to complete

Campus Offered:

Derrick Campus, Samabula

Minimum Qualifications Requirements:

Trade Diploma in Renewable Energy Engineering

About the programme:

The programme has been developed to educate the students in the field of renewable energy engineering making them apply the acquired skills and knowledge renewable energy power generation via different sources like solar, wind, biomass, hydro etc. The demand for a renewable energy programme will grow and become more important in the coming years and will extend from the field of generation, transmission and distribution of energy to other sectors such as transport, construction etc. This diploma programme has been designed to cope with the growing importance of renewable energy in all sectors. In future, these graduates will have to find engineering solutions to provide renewable energy for electric vehicles, power plants or the extraction of energy from ocean waves, etc.

Objective:

The aims and objectives of the programme are to:

1. Provide industry with adequate number of capable and trained manpower who have acquired a sound knowledge and understanding of the principles and processes of renewable energy engineering;
2. Provide good practical input with theoretical knowledge for technological advancement of the industry/society;
3. Provide a basis for further studies in the chosen field of engineering specialization;
4. Develop the knowledge of the students to enable them to make a positive contribution to the standards of quality in their field of employment;
5. Promote good communication skills for generating reports and communiqués;
6. Develop high ethical standards and values to make the graduates good and responsible citizens; and
7. Provide support and cooperate with industry and relevant training agencies in the development of competency to meet their employment needs.

Study Mode:

Trimester basis
