Message from the Vice-Chancellor – Professor Toby Wilkinson

days have been spent in a library, uncovering new knowledge and expanding my horizons.

I am also conscious that the modern university – in Fiji as around the world – can trace its roots back to the earliest known center of learning in human history, the Great Library at Alexandria. Back then, in 300 BC, a few thousand scrolls could encompass the whole of human knowledge. Today, the amount of data at our fingertips – in digital form – is truly staggering. On behalf of the whole FNU family, it is my pleasure to welcome you – whether you are a new or returning student, or a member of staff – to the Fiji National University and to our library services. As an academic historian myself, I am reliant on libraries for the primary and secondary sources that I use for my research; some of my most enjoyable

FNU libraries, you will find so much more than just information: advice and support, spaces for collaborative learning, and a warm welcome. I hope you enjoy using the FNU library services, and please give us your feedback so that we can make them even better in the future

INTERNATIONAL Mother Language

Fiji National University Library celebrated 'International Mother Language Day' to promote the mother language and awareness of language and cultural diversity, preservation and protection of all languages across the world. UNESCO declared 21st February to be the International Mother Language Day, however FNU library celebrated this event on Friday, 19th February, 2021 as the date marked was falling over the weekend.

All FNU libraries displayed books and resources on Fijian language, Hindi language as well as on Fiji's history. Many of the library users learned about the collections available in the library and showed their interest to discover more. As it is said that pictures talk better than words, please sight how FNU libraries promoted International Mother Language Day.
