

May 13, 2011

LOCAL band Dejavu gave a solid performance as it belted out a number of hits at the Jazz and Blues festival at Denarau Marina

The 10 member band is made up of local and international accomplished musicians and is in partnership with the Fiji National University.

The band has been in the industry for some 30 years and features a mixture of guitars horns and keyboards and also the Indian classical instrument the Tumbala.

Band leader Aneil Kumar said the festival has been a hit with live performances at the various stages with a great atmosphere.

He said guests got to witness different musicians from across the globe and the locals alike performing on stage.

“This event is fantastic. And our performance was great at the Sheraton and at the Jazz stage at the Port Denarau. The support we have had from FNU has been tremendous,” he said.

“The make-up of the band is interesting as there---is an Englishman Jonathan Brown, French men Alex and Patrick and then there’s an American Norman Bath, alongside Tanzanian national Innocent.

“This is a multiracial band or somewhat a mini United Nations. There are other local bands playing alongside as well the likes of Laisa Vulakoro, Hooters and Tom Mawi.”

Mr Kumar said for the next couple of nights the public could expect a different sound and mix from the band.

For more information

Ana Niumataiwalu
Public Relations Officer | Fiji National University (West)
Ph +679 6667533; Mob 9965757; fax +679 6666937 |
Email : ana.niumataiwalu@fnu.ac.fj
| <http://www.fnu.ac.fj> |